MEMORANDUM

SUBJECT: Senator Gore's Comments - Senate Foreign Relations Committee - 30 January 1967

1. Senator Gore, in the course of Kennan's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on 30 January 1967 in laying the groundwork for a very general question on Sino-U. S. relations, stated:

"Yes. I concur in your view in that respect. I was only laying a predicate with respect to the time element. The United States is advised, as I understand it, that the Soviet Union is proceeding to deploy an ABM system in and around Moscow, whatever those terms mean with respect to distance, and in perhaps 26 other areas."

2. In speaking to the Senator about this and a news broadcast which apparently indicated that the Administration had issued a denial, the Senator stated that he believed his statement was not inconsistent with a part of Secretary McNamara's posture statement released on 26 January 1967 which says as follows:

"We have been aware for many years that the Soviets have been working on an anti-ballistic missile defense system, just as we have been. After a series of abortive starts, it now appears that the Soviets are deploying such a system (using the "GALOSH" missile, publicly displayed in 1964) around Moscow. They are also deploying another type of defensive system elsewhere in the Soviet Union, but the weight of the evidence at this time suggests that this system is not intended primarily for anti-ballistic missile defense. However, knowing what we do about past Soviet predilections for defense systems a/, we must, for the time being, plan our forces on the assumption that they will have deployed some sort of an ABM system around their major cities by the early 1970s."

3. No one had communicated with the Senator or his office from the Administration on this nor had Gore heard the broadcast but his Administrative Assistant had and he stated that no specific department or person was named in the broadcast. As of six o'clock on 31 January, Jake Goodwin has been unable to locate anyone in the Executive Branch who knew about such a statement and has found no ticker items on it.

a/ "The Soviets for more than a decade have spent substantially more on air defense against strategic bombers than has the U. S. But if our Strategic Air Command is correct in its judgment that a very high proportion of the U. S. incoming bombers could penetrate the Soviet defenses and reach their targets, and I have no reason to dispute it, then we must conclude that the bulk of these Soviet expenditures has been wasted."
